

BIG TENDERLOIN POKER GAME GETS AIRING IN COURT

"Davy" Johnson, Horseman,
Must Tell How He Won
$9,835 From Lawyer.

BROUGHT SUIT FOR IT.

Now John Hall McKay Wants
Particulars to Find How It Happened.

Coincidental with the granting of an order by Supreme Court Justice Truax this morning for a bill of particulars in a suit brought by David C. Johnson, owner of the famous race horse Roseberry, against John Hall McKay, an officer of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, and a well-known attorney in Wall street, to recover an alleged debt of $9,835, Broadway was talking about a poker game in a fashionable restaurant uptown during the latter part of the night. It is said to have terminated rather abruptly.

According to report, there were four men in the card game. One of them lost heavily, and when he was asked for a settlement he said to have refused to pay. It was even said that he had declared he would rather be known as a "welcher" than pay, whereupon the winner threatened suit in the courts.

Johnson, in his complaint, merely recites that McKay "became indebted to him on or about May 27, 1908, in the sum of $9,835." McKay, answering this, swears that he is "absolutely ignorant of any legal or enforceable claim" which Johnson might have against him, and that he has never at any time or any place engaged in any transaction whereby he became "lawfully" indebted to Johnson.

The case was to have been tried today before Justice O'Gorman, but on account of the illness of one of McKay's lawyers it was postponed until Nov. 5. Maurice Meyer, who appeared as counsel for Johnson, said, after the motion for a bill of particulars was obtained from Justice Truax, that he would supply the same as soon as he received the order.

Was a Two-Handed Duel.
Broadway "regulars" appear to know all about the details of the poker game mentioned, and there was no attempt at secrecy on their part today. The men who played are well known, but the names of two of them, said to be merchants, have been withheld. They won less than $1,000 each from the lawyer who played in the game and received the money. Then the lawyer and the two merchants, who were the other players, decided to fight it out, the former being $2,500 in the hole at that time and desiring to recuperate.

Laurel was against the lawyer, however, and when the game broke up he was more than $500 in the hole. In his motion for a bill of particulars Mr. McKay denies the indebtedness to Johnson, but admits that a demand was made on him. He asks that he be made acquainted with the time and place where the indebtedness is alleged to have been contracted, and also under what circumstances and of what nature it is.

GIRL CLERK ACTED AS MORSE DUMMY IN $125,000 LOAN.

things and fixes his eye on Morse there is the look in his cool, mathematical depths, of a successful batter intent on defeating his adversary. The defense fear him more than they do any other witness for the government, remembering what he did in the trial of ex-Banker John R. Wilson, charged with and convicted of the same crime. Wilson's examinations of him are always conducted with the utmost care.

"Did you ever find on the books of the National Bank of North America any record of loans to Miss Kate A. Wilson?" asked the prosecutor. "I did," said Morse. "On Jan. 19, 1906, there was recorded a loan of $2,130 to Miss Wilson. This particular loan was made through the bookkeeper, he said, that Morse was the real borrower of the money, and that he had used the money to pay for the stock of the bank of North America, through Arthur Brown, of Philadelphia & Brown, his own private firm of trained and performing brokers.

Another entry showed a combined loan to Miss Wilson and Arthur Brown of $1,000, made in four installments of bank stock. This served to make it plain that Morse acquired these four shares at the rate of $250 a share. Next in order was a loan to Miss Wilson of $451, and used apparently for the purchase of thirteen shares at $25 the money going, as usual, to Primrose and Brown. Who bought the stock in the open market for Morse. Another loan of $125 in Miss Wilson's name bought five shares bank stock. There was a long succession of similar deals extending through the year.

PARALYZED OLD MAN, ALONE, LAY STARVING A WEEK

Discovered by Janitress, but Help, It Is Thought, Is Too Late.

With his right side paralyzed, F. Selig, an eccentric old man, was found in a room in the rear of No. 221 William street this afternoon, where he had been, starved and emaciated, for more than a week. The room was dingy and strewn from end to end with rubbish, and there Selig was alone, unable to call for outside assistance and all but dead.

After the police of the Oak street station had forced their way into the room they summoned an ambulance from the Hudson Street Hospital. Dr. H. H. Brand, who responded, said that Selig had little chance of recovery.

It is supposed Selig was stricken with paralysis a week ago Monday, as that was the last day any one about the house where he lived remembered having seen him. It was at the instigation of Mrs. Katherine Cuff, the janitress, that an investigation was started which resulted in finding the old man.

Selig is fifty-five years old and unmarried. He has been living at the William street address for three years. Little is known of him, except that he is supposed to have been supported by a wealthy relative who lives in Williamsburg. He seldom worked.

ULCERS FORMED ON BOTH ANKLES

As Big as Half Dollars—Followed
Attack of Varicose Veins—Would
Lie in Misery Almost All Night—
Grieved with the Terrible Pain.

HIS CURE RESULTED FROM USING CUTICURA

"I had varicose veins and was in the hospital three weeks. After I was discharged big ulcers broke out on my ankles. I got some of the ointment which they had given me but it did not do me one bit of good. They kept getting worse instead of better and really I could just manage to get along. I had places broken out as big as a half dollar and I used to lie in misery almost all night long and would cry with the pain, which were something terrible. When I got up I would have to sit in two chairs in order to rest my ankles. My sister advised me to try the Cuticura Ointment. I washed my ankles with hot water and Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment and I had instant relief the first time I used them. Now I am very glad to say that my ulcers are all healed up and I can walk as well as anybody. Robt. E. L. Oliver, 3438 Cedar Ave., Hampden, Baltimore, Md., Jan. 11 and 18, 1908."
